

Alioune Tine is a doctor in linguistics and semiology of communication. He was the United Nations Independent Expert on Human Rights in Mali since 2018 and he is the founder of the think tank Afrikajom Center. Former president of RADDHO and regional director of Amnesty International for West and Central Africa. He has also coordinated the World Conference Against Racism in Durban in 2001. A professor at Cheikh Anta Diop University and CESTI, he is recognized for his work on human rights, politics, and literature.