

Hamadou Tidiane Sy is a Senegalese journalist and the founder of Ouestaf News and the journalism school E-jicom, which trains future media professionals. Recognized as a social entrepreneur by Ashoka and Knight Foundation, he played a key role in combating misinformation during the COVID-19 pandemic. In 2021, he received the “Media Leadership Award” from the Rebranding Africa Forum. Hamadou has worked with major international media outlets and participated in global investigations like the “Panama Papers” and “Swissleaks.”